

Young people today are “digital natives”. They live online. They use the Internet at home, at school and at work. American children use their phones or computers, and/or watch television, play video games etc. for more than 7 hours a day (according to a 2010 survey). They have smartphones to go online and send texts and instant messages to their friends. They don’t like email - email is for old people. They find and share information online, they shop online, they use online maps to find places. In Britain 75% of young people say they can’t live without the Internet. 86% like modern technology because they can use it to communicate with other people. They communicate with a lot of friends only online. They don’t have CDs to share music with their friends. They share playlists on Facebook or other social networks.

Young people today are “digital _____”. They live online. They use the _____ at home, at school and at _____. _____ children use their phones or _____, and/or watch television, play _____ games etc. for more than _____ hours a day (according to a 2010 _____). They have _____ to go online and send texts and _____ messages to their friends. They don’t like _____ - _____ is for old people. They find and share _____ online, they shop online, they use online _____ to find _____. In Britain _____ of young people say they _____ without the Internet. 86% like modern _____ because they can use it to _____ with other people. They communicate with a lot of _____ only online. They don’t have _____ to share _____ with their friends. They share playlists on _____ or other social _____.